WELCOME TO THE LIBRARY.

WELCOME TO THE LIBRARY.

Margam and her daughter Yasmin visit the library for the first time.

And, is it exciting?

A bit. Hopefully, they have nice things for kids.

Margam and Yasmin talk to Tessa. Tessa works at the library.

Nice to see you. I will get you a library card.

At the children's department, Tessa shows Yasmin a book for kids.

What books do you like, Yasmin?

Yasmin reads a book on the computer. She can also use the computer to play language games.

Margam and Yasmin read a book together.

If you need help with reading aloud, ask a library assistant.

You can find nice books to read in the library.

Tessa and Margam look at a book for adults.

'Het Taalhuis' (language lab) is a special place in the library for learning Dutch.

The library has a 'Taalcafé' (language cafe). Here you can practice your Dutch with a language buddy. Ask a library assistant.

On the internet, you can find many newspapers in different languages. Margam reads a newspaper in her own language.

Margam and Yasmin have chosen a few books.

Yasmin uses her card. Did you know that children can lend books for free?

Margam and Yasmin go home with a pile of books.

The library offers you more....

Margam visits the library for the 'Taalcafé' (language cafe). Here she practices her Dutch with a language buddy.

Margam and Yasmin signed up for a 'Read Aloud Project' (a reading project). Every week, someone visits them at home to read to Yasmin. Reading aloud is a nice way to learn Dutch better.

Do you want someone to read aloud to your family? Ask a library assistant.

In the library, you can also find audiobooks, music CDs and films.

An audiobook is a nice way to 'read' a book in Dutch and to hear the language.

Tessa shows Margam the computers.

You can also practice your Dutch on the computers.
